

Lives Lost in Military Service to the United States of America since WWI

Compiled by Dan Nye, May 30, 2016

These are the men of Williamsburg & Haydenville who have, since WWI, lost their lives while in service to our country.

From Top to Bottom, Left to Right: John Kocienski – July 18, 1918, Belleau, France; Felix B. Lezynski – June 17, 1942, near Wake Island; Frederick C. Dewey – September 1, 1942, Williamsburg (drowned while home on leave); William E. Eno – March 5, 1943, near Tulagi, South Pacific; Gerald E. Larkin – December 8, 1943, Italy; James A. Stone – May 19, 1944, over Kiel, Germany; Francis J. O'Brien – July 10, 1944, St. Lo France; Bernard F. Murphy – July 21, 1944, over Guam; Frederick A. King – August 15, 1944, Southern France; Gordon D. Loomis – November 5, 1944, Holland; Edwin Kolosewicz – December 27, 1944, Luxemburg; Arthur J. Litchfield – May 2, 1945, Makassar Prison Camp, Celebes Islands; Edward P. Dolan – February 5, 1946, New York City (illness); Robert J. McAllister – June 19, 1946 Haydenville (illness); Chester Jon Kmit – February 5, 1969, Tay Ninh Province, South Vietnam; John James Moynahan – March 17, 1972, Bien Hoa, South Vietnam. Not Pictured: Alexander Demerski – October 18, 1917, France; Joseph Demerski – July 20, 1918, Belleau Wood, France; George Hamilton – July 20 1918, Belleau Wood, France; Raymond Gambian – October 25, 1918.

